What the fremen said of the horse was true. He had been to school, whence he was graduated atinguished honors. There are many inter-things in New York, but there are few fore interesting than the school from hich this particular horse was graduated. who has seen the school, says it is a splendid insti-tution, and Mr. Luvai, who was sent from Paris s few years ago to study the methods of the world-famous Fire Department of New York City, was so truck with the school that he recommended and cured the establishment of a similar school in

HE WAS ONCE IN THE SERVICE.

The school of New York educates horses for the only. It is a more important institution han most persons may, at first thought, imagine ble as are intelligent men. A stupid, a slow, or of dollars and perhaps many lives. A delay of two or three seconds in getting a fire-engine out of the engine-house sometimes gives a fire an impetus that is unnecessarily damaging to life and perty. The horses turned out from the school are warranted to be atrong and intelligent and so have a thorough knowledge of their business. They never balk, they are never lazy, and are in and more than intelligent.

n since 1882, and in that length of time has iduated some 400 horses. There are employed tre service in New York nearly 500 horses. supply the 55 engine-houses and the lowers and wagons of the chiefs of battal no matter how strong and hardy, suffer it, despite the care that is taken of them.

The horses are all picked, but they seldom are fany use for fire work after five years of service. ey are selected by experts from among the best that are to be found at the Bull's Head The horses selected come mainly from the West. It requires some skill to pick out horses for use in the Fire Department. Big and clumsy horses are of no use, but they must be speedy 16 hands high, weighing from 1, 200 to 1,450 pounds, and their ages range from four to six years. Younger horses are not strong enough to drag heavy fire-engines, and older ones are too old to

As soon as the horse is bought he is sent to school, and Dr. Shea, who is in charge of this in-stifution, says that in his opinion horses and boys are very much alike, and must be managed in very much the same manner. But Dr. Shea believes in kindness as a means to get control of his pupils stiftuon, says that in his opinion horses and boys are very much alike, and must be managed in very much the same manner. But Dr. Shea believes in kindness as a means to get control of his pupils and teach them.

It is marvellous how quickly these young horses learn what it is necessary for them to know before they can be put to work. The men who handle them know their business thoroughly, and are in love with it. Under their careful training the green horse understands his quites in little more than a month. No whip is used in this school. The first test is that which establishes the soundness of the animal's wind. Then he is put in his stall. He is ied backward and forward to where the harness hangs until he becomes used to the engine, and until he also becomes accustomed to ducking or lowering his head to get it into the collar.

When he accomplishes his task well he is given apples or candy or immps of sugar, and is petted and made much of. He is next taught to rush to his place in front of the engine at the clang of the going. When he becomes expert at this his education is complete and he is ready for serious work, and a week later can run to a fire as well as the most thorough-going veteran.

There are always a dozen horses being put through their paces at this achool, which is constantly becoming more and more of a necessity. These horses cost about $500 each, and after their five years they are disposed of to street peddiers of cartmen for any sum from $50 to $150. They are so well taught that they never forest their training. It is not an uncommon thing when a tre-engine dashes through the atreets of New York to see some dilagidated-looking nag attached to a buckster's wagon prick up his ears and join in the race to the scene of the fire. It is an old and broken-down inter-horse, who cannet forget the stirring days when he helped draw an engina.

There are some wonderful horses in the New York to rear the sum at the sound of the cry of the kounds.

There are some wonderful horses in the New York Fire Department, but the champions are Joe and Charley, the 'spiendid team that is attached to Kagine Company No. 17, in Chambers street. These were the prine-winners at the World's Fair at the American Institute in 1885, and they are still the champions. They are the two most famous scholars ever turned out from New York's school. Joe is the champion of champions, and he entertains many visitors who come daily to admire his intelligence. Joe is a roas, and a handsome one, too. His mate, Charley, is a bay, and this team can than any team in the United States and probably in PLAYS AND THE PLAYERS. the world. At the World's Fair, when they won the medal which they still hold, they were tried on a dash of $2 feet 5 lines. They made three team—one at 15 in the morning, another at 2 in the afternoon and yet another at 5 o'clock in the evening. The lime for the first daan was 1% seconds, for the second, $2 seconds and for the last, 2 seconds. The intelligence of these horses a simply remarkable. Chief Shaw, of lender, o'clud scarcely believe that they could do what was said of them until -it was done before his own eyes. Even then it was hard to believe. On three ordinary trials, the other night, Joe and Charley got into their harness and had their engine on the street and do the way to a fire its an average time of 11 seconds. And there was firmen call "dandles," so has Engine Company 33, and half the engine, companies in New York have their peta.

Dr. Shes, who is also Capt. Shea, pays great attention to the making up of the teams in the department in the dandles and as studies his pupils very closely before making them up into pairs. It is to his system that is due the wonderful intelligence of the horses, and the smoothness with which they work together. Capt. Shea is careful to mate his horses in size and color as well as in temper, and the effect is good. He is also an enthusiast in the matter of improving the harnesses in use. The matter of improving the harnesses in use. The coliar formerly worn by the fre-horses was a clumsy affair, weighing some thirty-live bounds. Capt. Shea has had introduced a light-weight steel collar weighing but seven pounds, that is quite as atrong as the old one.

This training school is also a hospital for horses. All the stok of disabled horses used in the department are tended here by the same men who taught them all they know.

The school is constantly developing, but it is at present careful yellow. The firemen are agitating for a larger and more complete establishment, that will be capuble of turning out yearly at least twice as many educated horses as it now can. The improvements will unquestionably come before long.

But in the mean time the school is doing good work and is one of those things in New York that are worth seeing.

GRAND OPERA-HOUSE.

At Jacobs's Brooklyn Theatre: "The Shadows of a Great City," a pleasing and attractive melodrams, was presented last night to a crowded house. The scenery was fine and many of the effects startling. The company is a strong one, introducing among other excellent artists Annie Ward Tiffany, Rose Tiffany, George R. Edeson, W. W. Allen, John Marshall, W. H. Burton and others. Three matinees will be given.

At Zipp's Casino the week opened auspiciously, the attendance last evening being large and enthusiastic. Minnie Schult, as usual, is the prime favorite, and will add to her reportoire soon a topical song in which she will personate a fashionably attired swell. The artists for the present week, all of whom were received favorably last night, are Adele Martmette, C. H. Brooks, Chris Stevens, E. Leroy Grove, Raymond Wilson, William Greenot, Frederick Dierks, Martin Schlig and Prof. Kirchner's Orchestra.

HOLMES'S MUSEUM.

Manager John Holmes, of Holmes's Standard Museum, was in a smilling mood yesterday aftermoon, as he looked over the large, assemblage of Brooklynites gathered in response to his invitation to be present at a private reception tendered to Lucia Zarate, a wonderful little woman, twenty-six years of age, who tips the beam at four and three-quarter pounds. The medical fraternity turned out in force, prominent among them being Drs. A. B. Peck, Jerome Walker, Geo. Everson, Wm. T. Hudson, Henry Anderson, Geo. &t. Smith, Wm. Meade, Frank Westwood and Benjamin M. Briggs. Others in the assemblage were Hugh McLaughlin, Henry Philip, P. McKulty, Chas. Gonld, Frank A. Robbins and ex-Mayor H. S. Holmes, of Elisworth, Me. The entire assemblage later swe Horace Lewis in "Monte Cristo," which is the attraction in the theatre.

Miss Annie Pixley presented her latest success.

"The Deacon's Daughter." at the Lee Avenue Academy of Music last evening. The story of the play, which tells of a country girl's experience in the city, is interesting, and there are introduced several catchy new songs by Miss Pixlep. The audience last evening was enthusiastic, and a full house warmly testified its approval of the play and the people connected with it.

The Harlemites last night were treated to "Uncle Tom's Cabin," arranged by Charles Alfred Byrne and Arthur Wallack. taken" with Elsie Leslie, the youthful exponent of the rôle of little Lord Fauntleroy, that she has taken the child and the family belongings to live with her at her flat in Fifty-first street. One of the proudest women in the city last night was little Elsie's mother. It is now said that the reason Mesers. French & Sanger let Tommy Russell alternate with Elsie Lealie in "Fauntleroy" has nothing to do with Gerry or his society. It is in order that when the play goes out on the road Messrs. French & Sanger may take one of the two children who have played the rôle in New York. The part is a vary important one, and out of town managers will demand the New York original. Consequently the Broadway Theatre management are making two originals, in case of anything happening to one. A child actor is more easily fatigued than the adult and robust Thespian.

"Jobnny" Wild, and his play, "Running Wild," have at last found a theatre in this city. It is the Star. Mr. Wild will play there for two weeks, beginning Jan. 17. He is happy. Miss Lena Merville and Miss St. George Hussey will support him.

Miss Isabelle Gresson closed her contract with Messrs. French & Sanger, at the Broadway Theatre, Saturday night. She will remain in this city, it is said, preferring to take such engagements as may offer themselves here, to the tempestrous life "on tour." Although she has been playing pathetic roles at the Broadway, none of them have givent her any very conspicuous opportunity. Her forte is comedy. So is that of her sister, Miss Estelle Clayton, if she could only be led to believe it.

"Washington Life," the play from which the authoress claimed "The Wife" was stolen, was produced. The company are now back in the city. It was said yesterday that they had been cruelly abandoned. Thespians, when will you learn to be business-like? When will the idea of testing the responsibility of a manager before confiding yourselves to him occur to you?

Mme. Modjeska's contract with Nixon & Zimmerman, of Philadelphia, is for thirty-five weeks. She will in all probability play at the Star Theatre in this city. Measrs. Nixon & Zimmerman have great faith in Mme. Modjeska. She did a large business in their Quaker City last season.

Some of the people who are not employed in "Captain Swift" will play "Partners" not only in Buffalo, where they are to open a new theatre, but in St. Louis at the Olympic Dec. 17. Salvini and Miss Maude Harrison Talking of Miss Harrison it may be as well to say that she is not yet married to Mr. Carson, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding. The facts are said to be these: Mr. Carson's desire is to marry Miss Harrison, but he cannot do so without the decree of divorce for which he has applied, and which for legal reasons has not yet been secured. It is said that there is every probability that it will be a very long time before Carson is thus made bappy, inasmuch as there are no reasons why the divorce should be granted. Rumor has it that since Mrs. Carson has heard of her husband's intention to wed Miss Harrison she is not so anxious to let him seek a divorce. In the mean time the actress is still a member of the Madison Square Company.

The company that is playing "The Wife" on the road is to be seen at the Grand Opera-House next Monday. The cast is very different to that seen at the Lyceum Theatre. James Barrows, Hattie Schell and the other unfamiliar members of the company have won golden opinions out of town.

"The Fugitive," a melodrama by Tom Craven, was produced for the first time in this city at the Windsor Theatre last night. It was the kind of play to appeal to the gallery, with its dramatic situations, its "catch applause," speeches and its long-suffering hero and heroine. There is nothing original about it, and no particular excuse why it should have been written. There are many better melodramas being performed at the present time. "The Fugilive" presents many characters that are well known to melodrama lovers. The scenic effects are excellent and the company good.

There was an interesting variety performance at Koster & Bial's last night. Miss Lillie May, Miss Nellie Franklyn, a soubretter J. H. Jake Hyams, the English light-weight, said yesterday that his fight with Jack McAuliffe will take place about Dec. 13. Jake's left hand was burned in Madison Square Garden, while he was attending to Littlewood, but he thinks it will be all right in a few days. He is in good condition, and will fight at 133 pounds.

Miss Lydia Yeamans sang several English ballads last night at Tony Pastor's. Manager William O'Brien is inclined to favor London for the next six days' go-asyou-please race. He said yesterday: 'London, if worked properly, would yield a pile of money in a race. There is money enough over there, and all we will have to do will be to get the public interested in a race. If we arrange a go over there it will probably not interfere with another one here.'

George Littlewood, the champion six-day goer, does not care much wnether the next race is in this city or London. He will enter any way, and after his cordial treatment here likes America as well as any place. He is naturally good-natured and a pleasant fellow to converse with. He minded his own affairs during the recent race, and is friendly to all the American\boxed{boys} who were entered against him. COL. SINN'S PARK THEATRE.

THE AMPHION ACADEMY.

"Harbor Lights" was played last evening at the Amphion Academy to a large audience and gave general satisfaction. The principal roles are well sustained by Charles B. Welles, Ogden Stevens, A. Z. Chipman, Carl Smith, Julia Stewart, Genevieve Beaman, Georgie Dickson, Florence Roberts, Lizzie Conway and Jennie Lane. The play is finely mounted. Two matinees will be given and next week "A Hole in the Ground" will take the boards. "The Ivy Leaf," a picturesque Irish drama in five acts was the attraction at the Brooklyn Grand Opera-House last night. The play is replete with catching songs and dances, and was frequently interrupted by bursts of applause. Mr. Smith O'Brien as Murty Kerrigan made a true-hearted Irish lad, "He has a sweet voice, and his rendition of the patriotic song, "Old Ireland's Free Again," was a great feature of the entertainment, Miss Lettic Allen, who appeared as Coleen Bawn, is a pretty brunette, and Miss Nellie Rosehud as Maureen Declish made a fresh Irish maiden. F. D. Montague as Gerald Daly was an attractive young officer.

Half the walking match receipts, or something over $9,000, was yesterday divided as follows among the ten contestants who covered 525 miles and over: Littlewood, $3,704.04: Herty, $1,666.98: Moore, $1,-111.32: Cartwright, $838.49: Noremac, $555.66: Hart, $468.05: Howarth, $370.44: Connor, $277.83: Golden, $185.22: Mason, $92.66. Ed Plummer has become very much interested in little Charlie Smith, the English lad who won so many friends in the race at the Garden. He has taken Charlie into his own family, and is fast becoming attached to the bright little fellow. Charlie took in about $126 at the Garden. He had never known what it is to trot or run, and his new-found friends here have had much sport teaching him an easy gait. He has made fast time by his natural step, a fair heel-and-toe walk, and Mr. Plummer thinks he can walk a mile in seven and one-half minutes. This is fast for a sixteen-year-old.

"It is not necessary for you to go yet," he said, quietly. "I shall go any way, so, him Johnson, pray remain."

Her pride was battling for victory. Sha half turned to go, but in a moment she saw the right, and whatever might be the result she would tell him.

"I have been very foolish," she cried, reaching out both hands to him and bursting into a passion of tears.

He understood her at last, and taking her hands, drew her to him.

"Go on," he said gently.

"Oh, Chauncey, I love you with all my heart!" she said passionately.

He clasped her in his arms and kissed away her tears.
